Welcome to Mesa Urban Garden

Welcome to Mesa Urban Garden
Working to inspire sustainable urban living in the community.
Launched through iMesa, an online civic engagement process, residents are invited to imagine transformative projects to improve their community.
Sprout an idea

The idea gathered enough public votes to get the attention of City officials.

"Use vacant downtown parcels... to grow fresh produce... and a place for people to gather!"
A group of enthusiastic community members joined forces and created a proposal for Mesa Urban Garden.

Mission: To inspire sustainable urban living in the community.

These individuals brought skills and knowledge of urban planning, sustainability studies, local business, military service and neighborhood economic development.

Groundbreaking: July 2012
MUG went to work to cultivate community partners! The Mesa Arts Center, just a few blocks away, quickly incorporated art through murals and the site instantly acquired a sense of place.

MUG's signature mural by Kyllan Maney and Lauren Lee features a Frida Kahlo inspired Mother Nature.
Cultivate Partners

Businesses, non-profits, education and faith communities and even with a new restaurant right next door all got involved!

...and specially designed beds for the physically challenged (installed by ASU design classes).
Harvest Enthusiasm

Garden beds can be leased to individuals or as communal plots which are tended by volunteers and harvests are donated to local food banks and shelters.
Workshops take place including gardening, composting and solar cooking. You can even find a good book at the onsite ‘little free library.’

Adding to the outreach and education, in November 2014, MUG and Mesa partnered again, and with the help of the community, installed a demonstration of Low Impact Development.
This technique allows more rainwater to channel into street landscapes rather than carry pollutants to our rivers.
From a vacant parcel to a property full of life...
MUG keeps growing in more ways than one.
